James Peter Allaire

James Peter Allaire, Iron manufacturer and marine engine builder, was born in Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia on July 12, 1785.

Originally from New York the family moved to Canada during the American Revolution because of his father's loyalist views.

The family returned to New York and by 1806, having learned the brass manufacturing business, James P. Allaire opened his own foundry. From 1816 to 1840 he operated the largest marine engine building shop in the United States at his Allaire Works in New York City. He owned and established a line of steamships that traveled up the Hudson as well as a line down to Shrewsbury, NJ in the 1830s. In addition he established and owned the majority interest in a steam packet line to Charleston, SC. He was also the inventor and patentee of an improvement on steam boilers which was widely used in the construction of boilers all over the world, during its day.

The Howell Works

In 1822 James P. Allaire purchased the property that was to become known as the Howell Works, the purpose was to insure a source of iron for his New York City steam engine works. Over the next few years many improvements were made at the Howell Works. The isolation of the site caused Allaire to consider the need to develop a self-sufficient community, that would include a carpenter/pattern makers shop, blacksmith shop, bakery, gristmill, workers' homes, a boarding house, mills to finish iron products, a school, a church, and a general store with a post office.

The Howell Works thrived during the period 1822 to 1848. James P. Allaire retired in 1850 and moved to the Howell Works spending his remaining years at the site until his death in 1858.

Allaire Village, Inc. CELEBRATING OUR 53rd ANNIVERSARY

The Historic Village at Allaire celebrates the life and times of James P. Allaire's Howell Iron Works Company, a major industrial center in the 1830s. The Historic Village at Allaire, a community listed on the New Jersey and National Registers of Historic Places, is an outdoor, living history museum operated by Allaire Village, Inc.

This non-profit, educational organization was established to serve the public with interpretation and educational programming about the history and culture associated with the site, which is located within the confines of Allaire State Park. Toward the fulfillment of its educational mission.

Allaire Village, Inc. relies solely on the generous support of you, the visiting public. The museum's educational interpretive and fund-raising programs are primarily staffed by volunteers and are funded only by your generous contributions, and your patronage of its retail stores and the various fundraising programs.

Thank you for supporting New Jersey's history at The Historic Village at Allaire.
